Why Contact CT Rises?

After disaster, there is often a time of confusion about how recovery happens. When a disaster affects a home, it is often difficult for people to plan their return to pre-disaster 'normalcy'. Insurance coverage, FEMA and government assistance, in combination with personal resources and finances may not be enough to fully recover.

That's why Connecticut faith-based organizations, voluntary organizations, and non-profit agencies have come together to assist individuals and families affected by Hurricane Sandy, as well as future disaster events.

CT Rises may be able to help you or your neighbors with:

- Mold and debris removal
- Home damage
- Strategies to prevent future damage
- Disaster mental health needs
- And more

We cannot assist you if we don't know you're out there!

CT Rises is prepared to work with any family or individual struggling to recover from Hurricane Sandy, as well as future disasters.

Caseworkers Are Ready To Speak With You

CT Rises caseworkers are trained specifically for disaster recovery and can assist your family with developing recovery plans. Caseworkers work in collaboration with CT Rises organizations, simplifying access to the resources necessary for your recovery.

CT Rises FAQ's:

■ I'm really busy right now, can I contact the group when I have more time?

*CT Rises will only be accepting applications and providing Disaster Case Management for a limited time. Don't wait! Call today!

■ Is anybody eligible for assistance?

Anybody is eligible to apply for assistance, however assistance may only be provided if the following requirements are met:

- Needs must be disaster-related.
- Needs must be un-met (not previously addressed by another agency, organization or personal resource). Caseworkers will not duplicate benefits previously awarded to a survivor.
- Needs must be able to be verified by the caseworker.

■ Is this assistance free?

Applying for assistance and casework services are free of charge. Donated and volunteer services are often a viable resource and usually free of charge as well. However depending on the services needed, the individual or household may be responsible for portions of assistance provided. Your caseworker will work with you to ensure any costs are upfront, reasonable and affordable and are agreed to by the applicant prior to service delivery.
