MILFORD PUBLIC LIBRARY

Clothespin Trivets—An Adult Craft

Thursday, January 4 at 2pm

There's always something fun about turning an everyday object into something else entirely. Wooden clothespins and a glue gun, with a little imagination, can be transformed into beautiful handmade trivets. Add a pop of color with acrylic paint and you'll have a decorative item that would look good on any table. All materials and instructions included. Call 203-783-3292 to register.

Resume & Cover Letter Workshop

Wednesday, January 10 at 2pm

The job experts at the Goodwill Career Center will present tips on building a great resume and utilizing it to distinguish yourself from the competition. Join us for this workshop and secure the job position you are interested in. Learn how to highlight your skills and experience. The workshop is free and open to all.

Living With Coyotes

Tuesday, January 23 at 7pm

The Eastern coyotes are being seen more frequently across Milford. Steve Johnson, Milford's Open Space and Natural Resource Agent, will share a CT DEEP Master Wildlife Conservationist presentation about the coyote habitat and life. Learn about their natural history, diet and breeding habits. Are they a threat to people, dogs or cats? What tips help prevent conflicts with coyotes?

Human Trafficking

Saturday, January 27 at 2pm

Child trafficking is not only a crime that happens in other parts of the world—it happens in our own state! Elm City Abolitionists is a group of concerned local citizens whose mission is to combat child trafficking and exploitation in CT through increased community awareness and advocacy for survivors and those at risk. Join ECA for a showing of the documentary "Sex and Money: A National Search for Human Worth" about the shocking reality of domestic minor sex trafficking in the US and the rising movement of advocates fighting to abolish it, followed by a Q&A session and panel discussion.
